Preface

The first two decades of the twenty-first century have witnessed significant social changes. The Latino population in the United States is now larger than the African American population, with the Asian Pacific American population growing faster than either. Meanwhile, White non-Hispanic youth have become a numerical minority when compared to other racial and ethnic groups. Alongside these demographic changes, a series of events have underscored the diversity of the American people.

People cheered on May 1, 2011, upon hearing that Osama bin Laden had been found and killed. However, many American Indian people were troubled to learn that the military had assigned the code name “Geronimo” to the infamous terrorist. The Chiricahua Apache of New Mexico were particularly disturbed to learn that their freedom fighter’s name was used in this manner.

Barack Obama, the son of an immigrant, became the first African American president, but Mr. Obama also recognizes other aspects of his ethnicity. On an official state visit to Ireland while president, he made a side trip to the village of Moneygall in County Offaly. His great-great-grandfather Falmouth Kearney, a shoemaker’s son, came to the United States from County Offaly in 1850.

Race and ethnicity are an important part of the national landscape and the national agenda. Forty years ago, when writing the first edition of this book, I noted that race is not a static phenomenon. Although race is always a part of the social reality, specific aspects of race and ethnicity change. In the first edition, I noted the presence of a new immigrant group, the Vietnamese, and described the early efforts to define affirmative action. Today, in an increasingly diverse society, we seek to describe the growing presence of Salvadorans, Haitians, Nigerians, Tongans, Somalis, Hmong, and Arab Americans in the United States.

Specific issues may change over time, but they continue to play out against a backdrop of discrimination that is rooted in the social structure and changing composition of the population as influenced by immigration and reproduction patterns. In addition, the breakup of the Soviet Union and changes in Middle Eastern governments have made ethnic, language, and religious divisions even more significant sources of antagonism between and within nations. The old ideological debates about communism and capitalism have been replaced by emotional divisions over religious dogma and cultural traditions.

New to the Fifteenth Edition

The fifteenth edition of Racial and Ethnic Groups continues to take full advantage of the most recent data releases from the U.S. Census Bureau through the annual American Community Survey (ACS). The ACS allows each new edition of the text to include updated information (without the ACS, data would be updated only once a decade, based on the results of the ten-year census). Thanks to the ACS, readers will find updated and revised tables, figures, maps, and Internet sources throughout the fifteenth edition. As one example of the thorough updating, we note that over 25 percent of the 1,560 references are new to this edition.

Learning Objectives appear at the beginning of each chapter; these objectives correspond with the numbered Summary of Learning Objectives at the end of each chapter. Each Learning Objective corresponds to a major heading in the text, providing students with a built-in road map and study plan for each chapter.

Relevant scholarly findings in a variety of disciplines, including economics, anthropology, social psychology, and communication sciences, are incorporated throughout the book. A Speaking Out feature appears in every chapter. These selections provide firsthand commentaries on race and ethnicity in America, helping us appreciate racial and ethnic groups’ responses to prejudice and other challenges. The Speaking Out features include excerpts written or spoken by highly regarded members of racial and ethnic groups, including W. E. B. DuBois, Mary Pattillo, Tomás R. Jiménez, and Nelson Mandela.

New Key Terms in the fifteenth edition include blood quantum, casual Islamophobia, colorism, daughter effect, eugenics, intersectionality, microaggressions, sanctuary cities, and sharing economy. Instructors who have taught from earlier editions of this book will see an increased effort to reintroduce key terms throughout the book in an effort to make them a part of the reader’s working vocabulary.

Along with the Speaking Out feature, the Research Focus and Global View boxes offer new insights into the ever-changing nature of race and ethnicity. Twelve of these features are new to the fifteenth edition.

The fifteenth edition adds a new feature, Relations Across Boundaries, which describe the interactions between racial, ethnic, and religious groups. This new feature helps readers understand that social relationships in the United States are not necessarily defined and dominated by White Americans. The Relations Across Boundaries feature is intended to create a dialogue between the student reader and the material in this book.

The Spectrum of Intergroup Relations appears in sixteen of the chapters. The Spectrum at the end of the final chapter serves as a summary of the observations made throughout the textbook.

The fifteenth edition includes entirely new sections on contemporary issues related to refugees, the sharing economy and discrimination, ongoing discussions of policy changes for the “DREAMers,” and environmental justice and the water system of Flint, Michigan.

Chapter-by-Chapter Changes

As with all previous editions, every line, every source, and every number has been checked for its currency. The goal of Racial and Ethnic Groups has always been to provide the most current information possible to document patterns in intergroup relations both in the United States and abroad. The following list details the major changes in each chapter.

Chapter 1, Exploring Race and Ethnicity
- New opening examples
- Latest American Community Survey 2014–2015 data update all statistics in the chapter

- Key Term revisited: colorism

Complete Coverage in Four Parts

Any constructive discussion of racial and ethnic minorities must do more than merely describe events. Part I, “Perspectives on Racial and Ethnic Groups,” includes the relevant theories and operational definitions that ground the study of race and ethnic relations in the social sciences. Specifically, the text presents the functionalist, conflict, and labeling theories of sociology in relation to the study of race and ethnicity. It examines the relationship between subordinate groups and the study of stratification. The text also introduces reference group theory from psychology. The extensive treatment of prejudice and discrimination covers anti-White prejudice as well as the more familiar topic of bigotry aimed at subordinate groups. Discrimination is analyzed from an economic perspective, including the latest efforts to document discrimination in environmental issues (such as the location of toxic waste facilities) and the move to dismantle affirmative action. Part I also discusses the important topics of intersectionality and the matrix of domination.

In Part II, “Ethnic and Religious Sources of Conflict,” we examine some often-ignored sources of intergroup conflict in the United States: specifically, White ethnic groups and religious minorities. Diversity in the United States is readily apparent when we look at the ethnic and religious groups that have resulted from waves of immigration. Refugees, now primarily from the Middle East and Central America, also continue to raise major issues. All students need to be familiar with the past to understand present forms of discrimination and subordination. Part III, “Major Racial and Ethnic Minority Groups in the United States,” explains both the history and the contemporary status of Native Americans, African Americans, Latinos, Arab and Muslim Americans, Asian Pacific Americans, and Jews in the United States. Social institutions such as education, economy, family, housing, the criminal justice system, healthcare, and politics are discussed with respect to each of the subordinate groups. Institutional discrimination, rather than individual action, is often the source of conflict between the subordinate and dominant elements in the United States.

Part IV, “Other Patterns of Dominance,” includes topics related to American racial and ethnic relations. The text recognizes, as Gunnar Myrdal and Helen Mayer Hacker have recognized, that social and institutional relationships between women and men resemble those between Blacks and Whites. Therefore, this book considers women as a subordinate group. Key topics of debate when the first edition of Racial and Ethnic Groups was published almost 30 years ago, including equal rights for women and abortion, show no sign of resolution.

Perhaps we can best comprehend intergroup conflict in the United States by comparing it with the ethnic hostilities in other nations. The similarities and differences between the United States and other societies are striking. In Part IV, the text examines the tensions in Mexico, Brazil, Israel, Palestine, and South Africa to document further the diversity of intergroup conflict.

The final chapter highlights other excluded groups: the aged, people with disabilities, gay men, lesbians, bisexual people, and transgender people. This chapter also includes a concluding section that ties together the forces of dominance and subordination and the persistence of inequality that are the subject of this book.

Features to Aid Students

Several features are included in the text to facilitate student learning. Learning Objectives at the start of each chapter provide a road map for previewing and mastering chapter content, and an introductory section alerts students to important issues and topics to be addressed in the chapter. Periodically throughout the book, the Spectrum of Intergroup Relations, first presented in Chapter 1, is repeated to reinforce major concepts while addressing the unique social circumstances of individual racial and ethnic groups.

Each chapter ends with a Conclusion and a Summary of Learning Objectives. Key Terms are highlighted in boldface when they are introduced and are listed again at the end of each chapter. This edition also includes Review Questions and Critical Thinking Questions at the end of each chapter. The Review Questions test students on their understanding of the chapter’s major points; the Critical Thinking Questions encourage students to think more deeply about some of the major issues raised in the chapter. An extensive illustration program, which includes maps and political cartoons, expands the text discussion and provokes thought. An end-of-book Glossary provides definitions of Key Terms.
Revel™

Educational technology designed for the way today’s students read, think, and learn

When students are engaged deeply, they learn more effectively and perform better in their courses. This simple fact inspired the creation of Revel: an interactive learning experience designed for the way today’s students read, think, and learn. Built in collaboration with educators and students nationwide, Revel is a fully digital and highly engaging way to deliver respected Pearson content.

Revel enlivens course content with media interactives and assessments—integrated directly within the authors’ narrative—that provide opportunities for students to read, practice, and study in one continuous experience. This interactive educational technology boosts student engagement, which leads to better understanding of concepts and improved performance throughout the course.

Ancillary Materials

This book is accompanied by an extensive learning package to enhance the experience of instructors and students.

INSTRUCTOR’S MANUAL AND TEST BANK Each chapter in the Instructor’s Manual offers a variety of resources: Chapter Summary, Chapter Outline, Learning Objectives, Critical Thinking Questions, Activities for Classroom Participation, Key Terms, Suggested Readings, and Suggested Films. Designed to make your lectures more effective and to save preparation time, this extensive resource gathers useful activities and strategies for teaching your course.

Also included in this manual is a test bank offering multiple-choice, true/false, fill-in-the-blank, and/or essay questions for each chapter. The Instructor’s Manual and Test Bank are available to adopters at www.pearsonhighered.com/irc.

MYTEST This computerized software allows instructors to create their own exams, to edit any or all of the existing test questions, and to add new questions. Other special features of MyTest include random generation of test questions, creation of alternate versions of the same test, scrambling question sequence, and test preview before printing. For easy access, this software is available at www.pearsonhighered.com/irc.

POWERPOINT PRESENTATIONS The PowerPoint presentations are informed by instructional and design theory. You have the option in every chapter of choosing from Lecture and Illustration (figures, maps, and images) PowerPoint presentations. The Lecture PowerPoint slides follow the chapter outline and feature images from the textbook integrated with the text. They are available to adopters via www.pearsonhighered.com.

Acknowledgments

The fifteenth edition was improved by the suggestions of:

Tonja Conerly, San Jacinto College – South
Catherine Felton, Central Piedmont Community College
Rebecca Hornung, Carthage College
Lori Lundell, Purdue University
Andrea L. Moore, Sacramento State University
Alicia M. Raia-Hawrylak, Rutgers University

I would also like to thank my publishers at Pearson, Billy Grieco and Jeff Marshall, for assisting in the production of this fifteenth edition. Development Editor Steven Rigolosi has drawn on his experience to strengthen this book further and adapt the manuscript to the many digital formats that are available now to the reader. My appreciation also extends to Editor-in-Chief Dickson Musslewhite for his encouragement and support for my textbooks on race and ethnicity.

The truly exciting challenge of writing and researching has always been for me an enriching experience, mostly because of the supportive home I share with my wife, Sandy. She knows so well my appreciation and gratitude, now as in the past and in the future.

Richard T. Schaefer
schaeferr@aol.com
Richard T. Schaefer grew up in Chicago at a time when neighborhoods were going through transitions in ethnic and racial composition. He found himself increasingly intrigued by what was happening, how people were reacting, and how these changes were affecting neighborhoods and people’s jobs. In high school, he took a course in sociology. His interest in social issues caused him to gravitate to more sociology courses at Northwestern University, where he eventually received a B.A. in sociology.

“Originally as an undergraduate I thought I would go on to law school and become a lawyer. But after taking a few sociology courses, I found myself wanting to learn more about what sociologists studied and was fascinated by the kinds of questions they raised,” Dr. Schaefer says. “Perhaps most fascinating and, to me, relevant to the 1960s was the intersection of race, gender, and social class.” This interest led him to obtain his M.A. and Ph.D. in sociology from the University of Chicago. Dr. Schaefer’s continuing interest in race relations led him to write his master’s thesis on the membership of the Ku Klux Klan and his doctoral thesis on racial prejudice and race relations in Great Britain.

Dr. Schaefer went on to become a professor of sociology. He has taught sociology and courses on multiculturalism for 30 years. He has been invited to give special presentations on racial and ethnic diversity to students and faculty in Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, North Carolina, Ohio, and Texas.
